

FOUR DOMAINS OF STRENGTH

EXECUTING	INFLUENCING	RELATIONSHIP BUILDING	STRATEGIC THINKING
Those with dominant themes in the Executing domain know how to make things happen. When a solution needs to be implemented, these are the people who will work tirelessly to get it done. Those with strength to execute have the ability to take an idea and make it a reality -- they are the "doers" that get stuff done. They are often the busiest people you know -- always working towards the next item on the to-do list.	Those with dominant themes in the Influencing domain help reach a much broader audience by distilling ideas in a way that makes perfect sense to us. These individuals can tell a story that's compelling and understandable -- we want to buy what they sell. When you need someone to take charge, speak up, and make sure the idea is heard, look to someone with the strength to influence.	Those with dominant themes in the Relationship Building domain can provide the essential glue to hold groups of people together. They can see what's going on with each person and how they are (or aren't) connected to others. Those with exceptional Relationship Building strength have the unique ability to help individuals and groups become much greater than the sum of the parts.	Those with dominant Strategic Thinking themes are the ones who analyze and stay focused on what could be. They love to read, learn, and discuss things -- constantly absorbing and analyzing information to help make better decisions. People with strength in this domain continually stretch thinking for the future; rather than one way forward, they can see many paths and options.
